Gefion Group strengthens the management with new Advisory Board

Four well-known business people join the Advisory Board for the development company

The development company Gefion Group takes another step, which strengthens and consolidates the company. In 2015 three experienced real estate professionals joined Gefion Group, among them the former Sjælsø-COO Jørgen Junker.

Now an Advisory Board is established.

Gefion Group are developing half a dozen real estate projects, which amounts to a project value of more than DKK 2 billion. It's lead by a small but strong organization, which focuses on project management and financing. The Advisory Board shall work as a Board of Directors and strengthen the management.

-We seek the useful dialogue in terms of the future development, which an Advisory Board and a Board of Directors can deliver. Therefore, we now establish this Advisory Board, where we can discuss our plans and get inspiration. We are very satisfied that four very competent business people are joining, says CEO Thomas W. Færch.

The four Advisory Board members contribute with a broad business and financial experience. Furthermore, they have a very broad and strong network in the real estate industry as well as the general society.

The four members are Peter Køhler Lindegaard, Per Mikael Jensen, Morten Bach Gaardboe and Jens-Erik Corvinus.

Peter Køhler Lindegaard has just entered the position as Chief Investment Officer in Industriens Pension after several years in Danica. He has in-depth knowledge to institutional investors and their investment approach.

Per Mikael Jensen, journalist, and former CEO of TV2 and Metro International in London. Today, he works as an independent advisor and professional board member.
